Pellets: A sustainable alternative for energy production

Pellets are playing an increasingly important role in the renewable energy scenario and are the most economical and efficient option for producing thermal energy. Its use covers several sectors, such as:

- domestic (stoves, heat recovery stoves, boilers),

- services (hospitals, nursing homes, IPSS, schools, multi-sports facilities, swimming pools, hotels),

- agri-food industry (bakery, meat processing, suckling pig roasters),

- manufacturing industry (textile, resins),

- agricultural sector (agricultural greenhouses, animal production pavilions).

Furthermore, in the production of electrical energy, pellets are used in thermoelectric plants, replacing coal.
